The service for the burial of the dead is an Easter Liturgy. Celebration of the resurrection lies at the center of it. Because Jesus was raised from the dead, we too shall be raised. The liturgy, therefore, is characterized by joy, in the certainty that “neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.”

This joy, however, does not make human grief inappropriate. The very love we have for each other in Christ brings deep sorrow when we are parted by death. Jesus himself wept at the grave of his friend. (John 11) So, while we rejoice that one we love has entered into the nearer presence of God, we sorrow in sympathy with those who mourn. (Book of Common Prayer, page 507)

I commend the Funeral Customary to all members of St. Andrew’s. It contains advice and references for yourself or for loved ones. It also has suggestions regarding many of the questions which arise at the time of death or serious illness. We are prepared to offer pastoral care and support during times of illness or death. Please do not hesitate to call on us during any time of need.

Rector*

CHRISTIAN BURIAL

1. The death of a member of the church should be reported as soon as possible to, and arrangements for the funeral should be made in consultation with, the Rector of the Parish. Baptized Christians are properly buried from the church. The service should be held at a time when the congregation has opportunity to be present.
2. The body may be present (burial) or not present (memorial service). If cremation has taken place earlier, the ashes may be present at the service in a suitable container.
3. Coffins are to be closed before any service and are to remain closed thereafter (BCP, p. 468). Rather than floral sprays or blankets, a pall owned by the parish is used to cover the coffin. An appropriate flag may be substituted for the funeral pall in order to honor a military veteran. Use of a pall or flag for all funerals ensures that equal dignity is accorded every person.
4. Only two flower arrangements are permitted in the church. They will be arranged by members of the St. Andrew's Altar Guild. The Altar Guild chair, BoBo Smith, will bill the family directly for any flowers used. Flowers are not permitted in the Memorial Garden.
5. The liturgy may be the Burial Office with Holy Eucharist or the Burial Office alone, using either Rite I or Rite II. The Eucharist is particularly appropriate at burials or memorial services because it celebrates the actual presence of Christ in the midst of our sorrow and reminds us that the living and the dead are united in Christ both now and always. Clergy invite all present to the altar rail and offer blessings to those not receiving communion.
6. Families who do not want a funeral home "viewing" may wish to greet friends and relatives in some other way. While such receptions may be held at home, the church Parish Hall may also be used. This is especially appropriate when the burial of the deceased precedes the memorial service.

CREMATION

Nothing in canon law or in the teaching of the Church prevents or discourages the practice of cremation. Cremation is an ancient and reverent practice which merely hastens the natural decomposition of the body. In no way does cremation express contempt of the body or deny the Christian doctrine of the resurrection. In First Corinthians, Paul likens the resurrection of the body to a seed planted in the ground. Just as the seed that dies bears no resemblance to the future plant, so will our spiritual bodies be distinct from our mortal bodies. It is consistent with Christian respect for the human body for cremated ashes to be disposed of with dignity in a suitable place. There is a Memorial Garden for the interment of ashes at St. Andrew's (see page 17).

MEMORIALS

Increasingly, Christians are abandoning the practice of spending large amounts of money on flowers at the time of death. Families often encourage memorial gifts to some charity or other cause of importance in lieu of flowers. Memorials may be made to St. Andrew's in a variety of ways: Memorials Committee, Building Fund, St. Andrew's Perpetual Trust.

PLANNING YOUR FUNERAL – GENERAL INFORMATION

As you plan your funeral, remember that your grieving survivors will have needs at the time of the funeral, and it is impossible to predict what those needs will be. Therefore, it is highly recommended that you give instructions as to your favorite hymns and scriptural passages, but also that you leave room for your survivors to make changes and additions as may be necessary.

If you wish a full body burial:

1. A pall will be used at the church. There is no need, therefore, for an expensive floral spray for the coffin. Should you have one for the viewing, it will be removed as your coffin is brought into the church.
2. Pallbearers are necessary. There should be a minimum of six.
3. Flowers are placed only on the two altar stands. It might be wise to indicate that, in lieu of flowers, you would like a contribution to be made to St. Andrew's or some other charity.
4. Burial may precede or follow the service.
5. A Eucharist is appropriate to a Christian burial. All worshipers are invited to come to the altar rail.

If you wish cremation:

1. The ashes may be present at the service.
2. St. Andrew's has a Memorial Garden for the disposition of ashes.
3. Flowers are placed only on the two altar stands. It might be wise to indicate that, in lieu of flowers, you would like a contribution to be made to St. Andrew's or some other charity.
4. A Eucharist is appropriate to a Christian burial. All worshipers are invited to come to the altar rail.

If you need advice:

Contact one of the clergy for assistance in planning funeral arrangements.

Filing your plans:

You are strongly encouraged to file your funeral plans in the church's confidential pastoral file, which is kept in the church's safe. This will permit the church to know the essentials necessary for your funeral and will remove considerable strain and stress from your friends and relatives.

PERSONAL PREFERENCES CONCERNING MY FUNERAL

As you think about planning your funeral service, take time to read through the beautiful burial rites in the Book of Common Prayer (Rite I begins on page 469; Rite II on page 491). Read through the listed scripture passages listening for words that speak strongly to you and/or say something you think would be especially helpful for your family and friends to hear as they grieve.

Because funerals are worship services, the music chosen for a funeral service should be church music.
Other types of music should be reserved for receptions held after worship has ended.

WILLS, LIVING WILLS, DONATION OF BODIES OR ORGANS, and DURABLE POWERS OF ATTORNEY

WILLS:

Every Christian should have a will to ensure that his or her estate is disposed of responsibly and to protect the interests of beneficiaries. Even in uncomplicated situations, it is best to consult an attorney for help making a will since laws differ from state to state. In preparing a will, church members should consider making bequests to their parish, diocese, church institution, or some other Christian concern as a way of expressing gratitude to God for the blessings of our lives.

LIVING WILLS:

A “Living Will” is a document executed in the presence of witnesses which records a person’s desires about whether or how to be kept alive by artificial or “heroic” means when there is no reasonable expectation of recovery from a critical illness. Because Christians understand that human life is more than mere physical existence, because the emotional and fiscal cost of interminable illness can destroy the stability of family life, and because Christians have a long view of life that extends beyond physical death, the execution of a “Living Will” is an appropriate option for each church member to consider. “Living Wills” provide helpful clarification for families, physicians, lawyers, and friends. An excellent example of a living will is a document called Five Wishes. Legal for use in Virginia, this document allows you to record your medical treatment, comfort, and care wishes. Visit FiveWishes.org.

It is important to appoint someone to be your health care agent. This can be done through your durable power of attorney or through an advance directive such as Five Wishes. This will help to ensure that your exact wishes are followed.

ORGAN AND BODY DONATION:

Many people desire to extend the usefulness of their body beyond death. You can do so by donating organs or tissues to those needing replacements or grafts, or by giving your entire body for anatomical study. You can indicate your desire to be an organ donor on your driver’s license or by carrying a universal donor card. Those interested in donating their bodies to science can contact the Virginia State Anatomical Program.

DURABLE POWER OF ATTORNEY

A Durable Power of Attorney is a legal document naming the person you would like to handle your affairs if you become incapacitated and unable to handle matters on your own. Durable powers of attorney can cover financial and/or health care affairs. A Durable Power of Attorney for health care specifies who will make medical care decisions for you; a Living Will spells out your wishes about these decisions.

A CHECKLIST OF THINGS TO BE DONE

- If death occurs away from a hospital or nursing facility, a physician must be called to verify the death and sign the legal certificate.
- You may notify the clergy at any time by calling:
 - St. Andrew's church office: 757-595-0371 or parish.admin@standrews-episcopal.org
 - The Rev. Anne R. Kirchmier: 804-687-5396 or rector@standrews-episcopal.org
 - The Rev. Marc Vance 812-764-0355 or associate.rector@standrews-episcopal.org
- Look in a desk, file cabinet, or other place where important papers are kept for any document prepared by the deceased for reference at his or her death. If found, consider their contents in the light of "reasonable possibility." If not found, proceed with your best instincts as you work through this checklist.
- Secure the help of several relatives or friends, not emotionally involved in the death, to help you with details. These persons can assist with answering the phone (keeping a record of the calls), arrange for child care (if needed), coordinate the supplying of food for the next few days, see to household chores, supervise hospitality for visitors, keep a list of persons to receive thanks for gifts and flowers, and assess funeral costs, etc.
- Will you permit an autopsy? Have the necessary hospital papers been signed?
- Do you, or did the deceased, want cremation? If so, embalming and a coffin are not necessary.
- If not previously arranged, decide on a funeral director and phone him or her, requesting he or she take the body into custody and await further word from you about plans. The clergy are experienced in these matters and can be your advocate. Embalming may not be required if the burial is held within a certain time frame and as long as the body does not have to cross state lines.
- Make a list of people to be notified. Decide who should contact them.
- Allowing time for publication of newspaper notices and arrival of people from out-of-town, set the day and hour of the service in consultation with the officiating clergy person.
- Decide what kind of service is wanted: Eucharist or Burial Office only? Body present or memorial service? Church or funeral home?
- Concerning interment:
 - Is there a cemetery plot? Where? Who owns it?
 - If buying a space, where will it be? How many spaces should you purchase?
 - Is space wanted for a coffin or only cremation urns?
 - Note: Ask the cemetery whether or not a vault is required before purchasing one.*
 - Are the ashes to be disposed of apart from a cemetery?
 - Would you like to use St. Andrew's Memorial Garden?

- Decide if there will be visiting hours. Will they be at the church, the funeral home, or elsewhere? Will they be before or after the service? Who will coordinate the visitation?
- Will the coffin be open or closed at the funeral home?
- Determine where memorial gifts in lieu of flowers should be sent and be sure notification of this decision appears in newspaper notices.
- The individual may have written a personal obituary. If this has not been done, who will write it? It could include age, place of birth, cause of death, occupation, college degrees, memberships held, military service, outstanding work, and a list of survivors in the immediate family. The funeral home or cremation society will assist in the writing of the obituary and should deliver it to the local newspaper. This is NOT a free service of the newspaper, and lengthy obituaries can be very expensive.
- Select pallbearers if you wish to have the coffin present at the service. Decide who will contact them.
- Whoever goes to the funeral home to complete the arrangements will need most of the information covered in this checklist. The funeral director will also need the following information: full name, date and place of birth, father's full name, mother's full name (including maiden name), survivors, memberships, newspapers in which the death notice/obituary is to appear, social security number, and a DD214, if available, for anyone who has served in the military.

With the DD214 on file, if a family wants an honor guard for a loved one, call the funeral home or mortuary and the staff will contact the military and make the arrangements. Typically, an honor guard is made up of active duty or reserve personnel from the branch of service the veteran served in. The rendering of Military Funeral honors for an eligible veteran, free of charge, is mandated by law.

- Work out the particulars of the service with the officiating clergyperson.
- Notify insurance companies. Check carefully all life and casualty insurance and death benefits including social security, credit union, trade union, fraternal orders, military, etc. Check also on income for survivors from these sources. Some individuals may have funeral insurance or may have made prearrangements with a funeral home or cremation society.
- Check promptly on all debts and installment payments. Some may carry insurance clauses which cancel them. Arrange for extension of payment schedules if finances are a problem.
